DYING BY INCHES.

The Sad Condition of Stoneman Purdy. Yesterday, while the sweet sunshine irew thousands of people from their homes and filled the churches, there was one poo oul in this great city from whom the delights of God's sunshine and much of the sunshine of his fellow-creatures was withheld. The unfortunate man was in room 6 at No. 1131/4 South Broadway. For four weeks Stoneman Purdy has sat, night and day, upon a chair, watched by his taithful wife, who knew that her husband was dying in most awful torture. And that faithful wife has most of that time been without even the plainest necessaries of life, often hungry, always tired, for she has watched night and day. Her bright has watched hight and day. Her bright intile son, 9 years of age, suffered part of the time with his parrents, but at last was sent to the Newsboys' Home, where he has a temporary shelter.

It is a reproach to our Christian civilization that these people should be so neglected. The unfortunate man will die within a few days, and his wife is without enough clothing to attend the funeral. Mr. Purdy has been an honorable man in all the walks of life—but three years of illness has consumed all of his savings, and now among strangers he is dying without attention. Rev. Will A. Knighten, pastor of Simpson M. E. Church has been giving the case his active personal attention, and those who have a disposition to aid this destitute family can do so through him, or if they wish to contribute money can do so through THE TIMES. The case is worthy of the attention of all good people.

ANOTHER HUNG JURY.

Eight to Four for Conviction in the Edelman Case.
The jury in the Edelman case, after having been locked up for seventeen hours, was called in by Judge Smith at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when it was announced that no agreement had as yet been reached. that no agreement had as yet been reached, and there was very little probability that a verdict would be arrived at, the questions upon which the jurors differed being the facts in the case. The Court ordered the jury to return to their room and they were again locked up until 1 e'clock in the afternoon, when Judge Smith again called them in. As they were in exactly the same predicament as before and there appeared to be no possibility of any further change, the Court ordered that they be discharged, the defendant, Edelman, being allowed to remain upon the same bonds as heretofore.

This is the third case against Edelman which has resulted in a mistrial.

It was stated after the jury had been dismissed that the ballot stood 3 to 4 for conviction.

been thrown out upon the show cases for some fastidious customer.

The reporter did not linger much longer, but started out in search of the lady who was creating such comment. The various hotel registers were comsulted and clerks interviewed, but the wisdom of these agencies was as superficial as, that of the

came to the rescue once more and asserted that she had come from the mellow air of California to this snow clad region te supplicate the man who had sworn to love and protect her. This was all that could be

The reporter abandoned this place and started in search of Mrs. la Pierce, nee Miss Thompson, a most estimable lady, who was married with great ceremony at the Cl-rendon hotel in September last. At that time the most magnificent preparations were made for the celebration of the nuptials, and upon the couple were bestowed the well wishes and congratulations of hundreds of friends who coursed in and out of the hymeneal chamber of the hotel. Mrs. la Pierce is exceedingly annoyed at the rumors, and denies that they are non-sessed of any foundation whatever. Mr. la Pierce has gone to Denver upon a business errand, it is alleged, and it is further said that he will return in a few days. The matter is arousing intense excitement on all sides, and will, do doubt, be productive of considerable more before it draws to an end.

THE CHURCHES.

A Scholarly Discourse by Rev. J. S. Thomson.

THE POWER OF SIMPLICITY

Rev. Manly Brown at the First Meth odist Church-An Eloquent Sermon-The Happy Chautauquans-Religious Notes.

Robert G. Ingersoll once said that the time would come when the churches would be turned into theatres but the world doesn't seem to be moving in that direction very fast. Precisely the reverse has oc-curred right here in this city, for every Sunday morning the Los Angeles Theatre is transformed into a temple of worship and is crowded from pit to upper gallery with a throng of people. On the stage stands a man, tall in stature, simple in manners, with an air of diffidence amountmanners, with an air of diffidence amounting almost to timidity who yet has sufficient magnetism to catch and hold the attention of people who hitherto have cared very little about pulpit oratory. There is a tremendous power in his utter simplicity. What Joseph Cook is to Boston, that in a measure is Rev. J. S. Thomson to Los Angeles—the profoundest thinker, the most liberal, broad-minded religious advocate, and the most scholarly speaker that has occupied a Los Angeles pulpit for many a day. He speaks entirely without notes and clothes his thoughts in language as simple as to amount to simpst commonplace.

His theme yesterday morning was "A Haunted House."

as to amount to almost commonplace. His theme yesterday morning was "A Haunted House."

Locke, the father of English philosophy, assures us that the mind of the child when born is like a piece of white paper upon which, as life progresses, pictures or images are made; the images become ideas; the ideas rise into thoughts and these thoughts rise into feelings. There is no material difference between this line of reasoning and the modern one. In religion and philosophy there is nothing new under the sun; the only difference is that education is more general in this nineteenth century, which is a great slep. Christian science is an old, old thing. Our Nati nalist friends are a rather touchy people regarding their belief, which they consider a new thing, but it is as old as political economy itself. Evolution was taught by Grecian philosophers. Some people tell us we inherit our minds from our parents or ancestors—if that be the case they are pretty young things. The mental dispositions of two brothers are often as far spart as possible—utterly different. Scientists tell us that life began in a little animal in the slime of the ocean—a mere mass of jelly, and, step by step has come up to the human being, who stands at the head of creation. The scientists claim that the brain of a human being passes through all the gradations from a jellyfish up. They assure us that this is a fact and that when a man becomes insame his brain to see its balance and drops down to a lower plane. A man is an atheist because he is too ignorant to be anything else. They claim that at the sage of 21 years a man has passed through all the stages of his mental growth and reached the fulliness of his intellectual power. Probably there is a great deal of truth in this reasoning on the part of scientific scholars.

The mind, however it may receive its mpressions, is a haunted chamber in which mpressions, is a haunted chamber in which The mind, however it may receive its impressions, is a haunted chamber in which the ghosts of past experience continually rise and will dot down. Our past life spreads out before us in mental panorama, the scenes of childhood, the sins, the errors, the sadness and the gladness of other days—these are ghosts that we can never banish from our mind. It was the ghost of remorse that so relentlessly haunted the mind of Nero that he finally could bear it no longer and asked a servant to assist him to end his existence.

We are master of these houses, and ancestral peculiarities should not weigh us down. Assert yourself, be your own master, and inherited evils will fly to the winds. An hosest resistence will hart back all transmitted evils. Fill, then, this mind with something good, that pleasant memories may rise, over which we will love to linger, and the ghosts of despair or remorse and sorrow will have no place there.

HAPPY CHAUTAUQUANS.

The multitude of people all over Southern California who regard the Long Beach Chautauqua Assembly as their Mecca, are hastening to make their annual pilgrimage thither to be present at the opening service this evening, which will usher in the fifth annual session of this popular organization. The intellectual bill of fare which will be served in liberal courses during the coming ten days will be made up of lectures on history, travel, biography, illustrated lectures, lectures on popular subjects, concerts, round tables and conferences. There will be schools of art, cookery, music, elecution, photography, a kindergarten, normal class and teachers' retreat, all conducted by specialists who are adepts each in their particular line. A glance at the programme shows the names of several speakers of national reputation. One of the foremost of these is Rev. Dr. P. S. Hensen of Chicago, who will deliver his famous lecture on "Fools" next Wednesday evening. Dr. Henson is one of the bright and shining lights in the Baptist Church and is a favorite on the Chautauqua platform, where he appears every year. Another prominent speaker will be fixey. hearted and fearful. His remarks tended not to discourage anyone, but rather to build them up, encourage and assist them. In a clear but unimpassioned voice the speaker proceeded to develop his theme, that the Christian, like the soldier, must need be well disciplined, carefully armored, and must possess courage to succeed in life's battle. He exhorted the young men to begin to build characters when the world does not observe them, and when they cannot expect to win the plaudits of the people, for the time will come in a crusts or emergency in life, when their character for virtue, courage and Christian fortitude will give them victory.

A MATCH FOR COL. INGERSOLL.
Rev. Dr. I. D. Driver of Portland, Or. who is celebrated as the only man with whom Col, Robert G. Ingersoil will not attempt to argue on the authenticity of the Bible, occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist Church last evening. Dr. Driver has been on the lecture platform for two years, and has spoken in all the large eastern cities on his favorite theme. He came to California in the days of '49, and has been a resident of Portland, where he was paster of a church before he entered the lecture field. He is a man 67 years of are, and looks twenty years younger. In his powerful sermon last night on the divinity of the Bible he followed out this line of argument: "Mental laws compel belief in God. Take matter, motion and thought. Mater must be either created or eternal, so must motion, so must thought. What is the origin of motion? Where did the rotary motion of the solar system come from? Why do some planets move in one direction and some in the opposite? What communicates movion? Motion must come from without, not from within, otherwise you suspend the fundamental law of the universe. Where does life come from? Anything that never had a beginning is eternal. Tyndall, Huxley and Darwin may call the origin of life force, cell, protoplasm, unknown and unknowable—but did it posses intelligence? It also it is supreme, and if not how did it receive intelligence? The moment you grind something out of a mill that never went into it that moment your mill is annihilated. "I believe in the Trinity and the Unity," he asserted. "So does Col. Ingersoil, for he said on the lecture platform, The lives the universe is sternal." Then it must have a past which is infinite according to his proposition; it has a present that has been eternality coming from the infinite past, so that is just as long and the continuous conditions of the following members: Eugene Germain, C. E. Camp, C. O. Scott, R. R. Brown, George E. Seip, or G. M. Holton.

all three no longer than either one. 'From everlasting to everlasting, Thou art One,' trinity and unity in nature according to Col. Ingersoil.

"In one of his recent lectures Col. Ingersoil said that Christianity stood in the way of all progress. I said to him, show me an instance, you deai'n assertions and never prove anything. Show me one progressive step, mental or moral, in any nation, kindred, tongue or people for 2000 consecutive years outside the circulation of the Bible. and I will give you a check for $500. Has China made one progressive step in that time? She made gunpowder 2500 years before Christ was born and has got no farther than fire crackers yet."

The people of Portland once offered Col. Ingersoil $5000 if he would enter into a public three-hour argument on the authenticity of the Bible with Dr. Driver. The great infide refused to accept it. Dr. Driver will speak several times at Long Beach during the Chatauqua Assembly.

First Pressytterian Church yesterday Rev. Dr. Coyle of Oakland preached in the morning from the theme contained in the three passages: "What is in thine hand?" "What hast thou in the house?" "How many loaves have ye?" The Doctor eloquently developed the truth as taught in the scriptures that God invariably works through human instrumentalities, preferring to thus exait man's talents and opportunities and, by infusing His power into them. work out His eternal purposes, rather than leave man with nothing to do but watch God working alone. When our Lord performs a miracle he lays hold of the natural with one hand, and the supernatural with the other, making of himself a connecting link between man and God. The miracle of the vine at the welding least was only a more striking exhibition than the yearly miracle of the vineyards where the waters of the Lord of the vineyards where the waters of the Lord of the vineyards where the waters of the Lord of the vineyards where the waters of the Lord of the vineyards where the waters of the Lord of the vineyards where the waters of the Lor

His subject was the apostle Andrew—the warm-hearted missionary who brought Simon Peter to the Savior. Andrew is noted for his human-heartedness, which accounts for his being chosen the patron Saint of the fervid Scotch people. The Doctor spoke of the first chapter of John's gospel as the chapter of "Eurekas"—referring to Archimedes' exclamation "I have found til" It is surprising to note how frequently the word "find" is used in this chapter. Andrew finden his brother. Jesus findeth Philip, and Philip findeth Nathaniel. It is thus a succession of findings—a literal series of discoveries. And while in the first part of this remarkable chapter we discover the origin of Jesus Christ, in this latter part of it we discover the origin of the Christian church—coming to the head waters of that mighty river whose streams make glad the dity of God. And in thus revealing to us the beginnings of the Uhristian church it reveals also the beginnings of Christian service—the first steps taken to extend the church and muitiply its converts.

MISSED A HUSBAND.

How a Texas Widow Was Victimized.

YOUNG MAN PRE-EMPTED

One Instance Where Courtship by Letter Was a Fallure-A Deluded Woman's Mortifying Experience.

Of late several deluded women have ven-tured alone and unprotected to this city from the Eastern States under the belief that they were coming to the wideopen arms of prospective husbands and in each case the couliding female has been com-pelled to pocket several pounds of disappointment and seek some other market for

A majority of these engagements have been made by the old photograph and let-ter process and neither of the parties had an opportunity of looking on each others' features until they met for the first time at the end of the lady's journey. This mode of courtship might have been the correct thing in early days when men were plentiful and women scarcer than hen's teeth, for at that time the new-comer could change her mind after arriving and have her pick out that time the new-comer could change her mind after afriving and have her pick out of a number of men who were anxious to marry; but at present marriageable women are aimost as pientiful on this Coast as they are in the East, and if a husband-hunting woman is fooled by the letter writer who induced her to come out, she finds herself in a pretty box.

A case in point has just come to light in this city that fully lilustrates the dangers surrounding a letter courtship at the present day.

Some months ago a dashing young clerk in one of the abstract offices and a well-to-do young widow in ballas, Tex, struck up a correspondence through mutu I friends, and after a time they exchanged photographs and became engaged.

The young man gave out that he was well fixed in this world's goods, and informed his intended wife that he could give her a magnificent home in Los Angeles, He also stated that business would prevent his coming after his sweetheart, and with tears on his pen he begged her to dispose of her interest in Texas and come to him at once. He had learned that she possessed $10,000 or $15,000 worth of property, and as he could show up nothing but a moderate salary as an offset, he reasoned that it would be much cheaper for the fair one to come out by herself.

After exchanging a few letters and many thoughts on this subject, the young widow consented to comply with her intended's wishes, and her little property was disposed of, with the exception of her plano and household furniture, which she shipped to I los Angeles by fast freight.

In due season the Texas widow reached the Wolfskill depot. Her intended was on the platform and as is usually the case on such occasions, the two ran over each other several times before identification was stabilished. Then according to days his wife that he could not let go until one of the said dispatchers, who is ever ready to play a joke on some unsuspecting innocent, yelled:

"All aboard for Preacherville."

This broke up the kissing bee, but the young woman was too happy to get mad at any one, for she thought her fond dream of happiness in the orange groves of the Sunny South was about to be fulfilled.

In this she was mistaken, however, for a dark cloud in the shape of a red-headed dressmaker hung over her anticipated fampiness, and instead of offering to take her to the minister at once, as she was led to suppose he would do, the abstract man coolly informed his intended that he would have to take her to private lodgings for a short time.

"For," said he, "I can't marry you just yet, my darling, as I am in trouble. I expected to have everything settled before you arrived, but luck is against me, and you will have to wait a few days."

Thinking that business complications stood in the way of their immediate marriage, the Texas widew was astisfied, and during the next few days she and her lover enjoyed a most charming couriship. Both seemed to be passionately fond of each other, and the courtship might have been going on even now, for a woman who has been through the matrimonial mill is not anxious to bring the courtship to an end as long as she is sure of her fish, but the fair widow from Texás was treated to a real surprise one morning when she learned of the existence of the above-mentioned dressmaker. She was 'fold that her intended husband was so tangled up with the dressmaker that he could not break away. At first she did not believe the story, but when her lover called that evening, as was his habit, she gracefully planted her head on his left shoulder and told him how shamefully people were talking about him.

Much to her surprise he confessed the whole thing. With a face as long as the moral law, he told her that he did not see how he was to get rid of the dressmaker, as that young woman had made up her mind to hold him. He had been

when you married to her?" tearfully asked the widow.
"No, but she loves me and she swears she will never give me-up, and from what I know of her she never will."
"Then you can't matry me?"
"Not just yet, my dear, but you know I tove you only, and if you will wait I hope it will come out all right."
A flood of tears and a lot of crimination and recrimination followed this statement, and the two parted.
The young widow had not yet taken her furniture from the freight house, and when she called on the railroad people she found that they had a bill of $75 against her. She paid the bill, reshipped the goods and took the next train for her Texas home, a brokenhearted little woman.

Bad Blood.

Impure or vitiated blood is nine times out of ten cansed by some form of constipation or indigestion that clogs up the system, when the blood vanturally becomes impregnated with the elfete matter. The old Sarsaparillas attempt to reach this condition by attacking the blood with the drastic mineral "potash." Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is modern. It goes to the seat of the trouble. It arouses the liver, kidneys and bowels and invigorates the circulation, and the impuri-

Charles Lee, at Beamish's Third and Market Sts., S. F., writes: "I took it for vitiated blood and while on the first bottle became convinced of its merits, for I could feel it was working a change. It cleansed, purified and braced me up generally, and everything is now working full and regular."

"Take the subject of drinking water, for instance, What sensible man or woman who ever held a glass of water up to the light felt that it was pure? Even a near-sighted person can see that it is full of animal and vegetable matter. In the city, where water is allowed to accumulate in tanks on the tops of the roofs, naturally the bottom of the tank becomes covered with black mud. In the country wells are simply drainings from the surface water outhouses, often from barns and stables. Is it any wonder that it is impure? Is it any wonder that it is impure? Is it any wonder people get sick from drinking it? Some people boil the water, and while this may kill the live germs, it does not remove them, nor remove the wagetable matter which may be in the water and which is often poisonous. The safest way for any one to do is to mix a little pure whiskey with the water, and thus wholly counteract all cit effects which may be in any water, hewever impure. Doctors advise this and science confirms it. Butonity the purest whiskey should be used, and Duffy's Pure Malt is admitted both by doctors and scientists to be the rurest of all modern whiskes. Besides fortifying the system against disease, it also tone up, makes the sluggish blood circulate and replaces weakness by strength."

Dr. Woh's life work has been from early youth one of persistent and untiring observation, study and investigation, as fully as lay in his power to perfect himself in all branches of the art of healing human sickness and disease. Born in China, of influential parents, of a family whose ancestors have been for generations deservingly renowned as leading physicians, Dr. Woh naturally followed in the footsteps of his fathers. In China he has practiced his profession for several years, being at one time a physician in the Imperial Hospital, and in America for a long time his great number of patients, his wonderful and many cures, and the great list of letters from grateful and thankful patrons now prove him to be a remarkable and successful healer of sickness and all diseases.

THE new steamship line from New York to San Francisco, by way of the Straits of Magellan, which is to go into operation this week, promises to work something of a revolution in the carrying trade of this Coast. It will probably do away with the clipper ships and may have some effect on railroad freights. The steamers are said to be speedy and safe and are expected to make the voyage in fifty-five days. They will call at San Diego and thus will probably secure some business from Los Angeles.

THE landing place of the immigrants in New York is prolific in pathetic stories. A short time ago the world was told of how Count George Szirnay, a Hungarian noble, spent a fortune in following his wayward daughter, who, when found in a New York slum, treated him with contempt and refused to quit her dissolute life. The old man returned to Europe brokenhearted, and last week, having purchased an immigrant ticket to New York, landed at the Barge office, shat tered in health and fortune, only to be detained as a pauper. Truth is indeed much stranger than fiction.

May the hand of the despot never again hold sway over that fair land, and may France and Switzerland soon form the nucleus of a constellation of European republics!

MANUFACTURERS of sweet wines have a grievance against a clause of the new sweet wine bill, which will g into effect on the first of next month. This clause, by some means-whether intentional or accidental nobody appears to know-was made to provide that no untaxed brandy can be used to fortify sweet wines unless the process of fortification is done in a winery located on a vineyard. It is unneces sary to state that many of the most important wineries in the State are not on vinevards. The next question What constitutes a bona fide vineyard? Will a dozen vines suffice? One of the Los Angeles wineries is having a couple of acres surrouding its grounds replanted with grapevines, which were grubbed out a few year

THE coyote bounty threatens to be come really a serious question for California. We mentioned yesterday that the bounties due from Fresno county for the past quarter amount to $4000 It is said that coyote scalps are being imported from the Territories and Lower California and even that coyote breeding establishments are contem plated, which, it is estimated, would pay $100 a year for each female coyote. Beyond this, horticulturists object the law, as they say that the jack-rabbit is one of the favorite dishes of the coyote and that with the disappearance of the latter we shall have as many rabbits as they have in Australia. The fruit grower thus has to pay for the destruction of one of the means by which one of his worst pests is kept in check. As between the two, the ticultural industry is certainly of more importance in California than that of sheep raising.

AN EXPERIMENT IN TRANSPOR-TATION.

There is evidently something amiss in the manner of conducting a railroad when residents along the line find it advantageous to resort to the oldfashioned male team in preference to patronizing the iron highway. Yet this is what is happening in the Mussel Slough country in Tulare county. Freight rates thence to San Francisco are said to be so high and the service so slow that many producers, after having paid freight on a consignment, with all the other expenses of sale, have found themselves losers on their shipments. According to the Hanford Journal the people of that section are obliged to pay an average of $1.01 per hundred upon the fruit and similar products shipped by them to San Francisco. This is almost as much as the rate to Chicago, and those most keenly interested have for some time been studying a means of relief. Two of the largest fruit packing firms of Hanford have, after due investigation, decided to sethe matter in charge. He says he will cure a number of mules and some freight wagons and establish a mule team line to transport their fruit from Lucerne Valley to San Francisco. There is an immense amount of dried apricots, peaches, prunes, pears and raisins shipped from Lucerne Valley each year to the bay, and the time con sumed and the cost of transportation is a serious one with the packer. The parties interested in the project state that they can hire teams, and men to drive them, and send their fruit by teams to the bay, bringing freight back on the return trip, cheaper than the Southern Pacific Railroad Company

> The distance by railroad from Hanford to San Francisco is 254 miles. Besides the saving in freight, the ranchers claim that the money that will be paid the teamsters will nearly all be spent at home for feed, supplies and so forth, so that the thousands of dollars now sunk annually in railroad freights, from which the community derives no benefit, will contribute to the general prosperity. This new experiment in transporta tion will be watched with much inter est in many sections of the State. GROWTH OF AN AMERICAN CITY

Chicago, the site of the great World's Exposition of 1892, an exposition which is to eclipse all previous enterprises of the sort, is at present the cynosure of all eyes, not only in the United States, but in Europe, in far-off central Asia, and in the isles of the sea, whence the rarest and most valued products will come to help add to the attractiveness of the great show.

Yet this Chicago, of which we now hear so much, is but the veriest baby among the cities of the earth. Fift years ago not one educated American out a thousand could have told where Chicago was.

The growth of this great city is one of the marvels of the nineteenth cen-one of the greatest cities of the world. Is this not a wonderful thought? The stories told at this gathering of old-timers were naturally of the stories told at the state of the stories told at the state of the stories told at the state of the stories of the state s granted to a man to see such changes within a lifetime.

When will the American come who will give us an epic poem descriptive of the birth and magic growth of a great American city?

THE TIN PLACE INDUSTRY.

Journals which are opposed to the McKinley bill are constantly trying to belittle the importance of the tin plate industry, against which they appear to bear a special grudge. Their argument will not bear investigation.

Since the war, about $400,000,000 has been sent abroad to pay for tin and tin plate for use in every American household. Referring to some of the sneering comments of some of the free-trade journals on this industry, the Boston Traveler very pertinently remarks:

We are glad the rabid free-trade papers are not wholly blind and deat. They will sometime learn the truth of what we have are not wholly blind and deaf. They will sometime learn the truth of what we have been constantly calling to their attention, that there are 468 tin-plate mills in Wales. or 98 works averaging five mills each. Those mills shipped 636,216,000 pounds of tin-plates to Auerica last year, and took away about 420,000,000 of Anterican gold. The American people propose to have better tin-plate at a cheaper price within a few years, by encouraging proper protection, which has enabled America to make better steel rails in fifteen years at 330 per ton than formerly at $120 per ton, and which protection has enabled Buston's copper interest to become the wonder and admiration of the world, all the while reducing the price of copper from above 40 cents to nearly 40 cents per pound, and the tariff of 4 cents to the McKiniey tariff on copper ores to 3/cent. per pound. The fairer of even the free trade papers are finally beginning to construct large tin plate manufacturing mills, while, on the other hand, they can build free-trade English castles-in-the-air any hour of the day or night.

ONE would suppose that San Fran cisco merchants would become restive ander the criticism to which they are constantly subjected by San Francisc newspaper correspondents, who one ind all agree in describing them as fossils and "silurians."

SEWER VENTILATION. A System which Would improve the Public Health. Los Angeles, July 7, 1891.—[To the

Editor of THE TIMES. | The article in THE TIMES of June 29th on "Sewor Flushing and Sewer Ventilating" has served one good purpose. It has brought out an article signed "Engineer." Perhaps there is no subject discussed through the columns of your paper that is of more importance to its readers and one less understood and appress and one less understood and appreers and one less understood and appre-ciated than this sanitary one of how best to get rid of yitiated air and poi-son gases, and possibly there may be some good come out of an interchange of ideas,

I feel like thanking Engineer for conceding the fact that the large ventilating flues would be successful but, he thought, would be expensive. Now if it is shown that the swamp of small flues is not practical and more expensive, will Engineer concede that the importance of the object to be obtained will warrant building the successful ones?

The bugbear is always met by practical ventilating engineers with a cheaper substitute which is often adopted and as often falls. The great trouble with the system of ventilating is that there has always been too much theory and too little practice.

Engineer disposes of the water question by saying that sanitary engineers had always claimed that the more water runs in sewers the less gas there would be. This is just the idea the writer had when he proosed to run the zanja water down the street gutters and through suitable traps into the sewers. I wish Engineer had stated his objection to this.

This might involve a little change from the present system but would not from the present system but would not the end justify the means? Would not a system to wash clean the street gut-ters every night warrant a little outlay a system to wash clean the street gutters every night warrant a little outlay of expense to start it, when it would cost so little to operate?

The present system of sprinkling just leaves the gutters recking with filth. The system of small vent flues Engineer speaks of, practical engineers know is not positive ventilation. It always falls to work just when ventilation is the most needed. But granting it to be so then the object sought is not obtained and for all practical purposes the gas might as well come out of the manholes as out of these vent pipes. For the pipes in my building may run up above my house and be just high enough to discharge effectually into my neighbor's, at the same time the pipes from my neighbors below me are being emptied into mine.

Engineer concludes the fact that to make his small pipes work it would require tight covers for the manholes, but at the same time he claims by reason of so many manholes being open it would require only of my expensive flues at each block. This is just the

it would require one of my expensive flues at each block. This is just the kind of a fix that theory often gets fellow into.

Now, I think I can make that thing clear to be seen, and show that the large flues are the only ones practica-ble and are even less expensive. We will say for instance that we have a sewer running up Broadway to Temple past the Courthouse and so on up Castelar to the High-school build-ing. We will build a ventilating flue or smokestack at the Courthouse and or smokestack at the Courthouse and connect this with the sewer. Then make tight-fitting covers for the manboles as Engineer required to be done. The requirements of this flue, or smokestack, are such tratit will always have a fire in it. So we don't care how long Broadway sewer is or how many connections it has, provided they are tight, it will as certain draw all the gas to this point and consume it as that water will run down hill, for the natural laws that govern it are just as natural laws that govern it are just as immutable. So far we have been to no expense whatever, only have asked that the manholes should have close fitting covers. We have not asked the clity Council to levy a burdensome and experimental tax, and yet we think we have shown clearly that we will get rid of this sewer gas, and also provided means whereby the Courthouse can be ventilated besides. This holds good for the High-school building, which would be required in order to ventilate the sewers on the hill much above the natural laws that govern it are just as

It every public or private building that has a steam plant would provide a vent-pipe connected with the sewer and run up a short distance in their smoke pipe, it would add wonderfully to the sanitary conditions of our city. While the people that live on the hills may get more of the ocean breezes, they at the same time get more of the sewer gas. If anyone believes they have traps to catch this gas let them turn a little extra water into their water closet and see if their nose don't tell them that the sewer gas does get through their trap. I think I hear a sanitary plummer say: We provide against that. We carry a vent-pipe out of the roof to carry off this gas that gets through the traps. I have another little test to prove to you it will not do it. Sometimes the wind will come down these pipes enough to blow out a lighted candle.

It may be asked if this is so effectual why has it not gone into general use. ter closet and see if their nose don't

It may be asked if this is so effectual why has it not gone into general use. It is often much easier to ask questions than to anseer them and I don't know of any better way to enswer this than by asking another. If cesspools are such breeders of diesse as all doctors proclaim them why do people continue to build them? And by the way, one-half of them are constructed so as to insure all the gases from them to be insure all the gases from them to be carried back into the house. A law should be enacted and rigidly enshould be enacted and rigidly en-forced that no cess pool should ever be-built. The system of ventilating by means of heated flues is nothing new and is being successfully used for closets in public and private buildings instead of water and unless sewers can be ventilated all water-closets, should be ventilated all water-closets should be ventilated this way.

Remove the effects of sewers and cesspools from our fair city and doctors and drug stores will only be required for imported disease. Sanitarian.

CHICAGO.

The Long-drawn-out Horticultural Hiatus.

THE STATUS OF MR. FORSYTHE

The Charges against Him-Proba billty of His Rejection-J. de Barth Shorb on the Grounds

[Delayed Letter.] CHICAGO, July 4.- [Special Corre spondence of THE TIMES. | Califor-nians are familiar with the long-drawnout contest over the appointment of a head for the horticultural bureau of the World's Fair. The contest has been unfortunate for California and for the interests of the fair. Yet it was unavoidable. No irreparable damage has so far been done, and there is still room for hope that the matter may be brought to a fortunate termination for California and the country.

First came the amazing and unexpected appointment of Walter S. Maxwell, which was met by protests loud, long and deep from all parts of the country, and from no quarter more vigorously than from Southern Callfornia, where he is known. He was warned here of his impending face, and kindly advised by sagacious people "on the iuside," to withdraw and save himself from the mortification of defeat. But he chose to disregard the advice, and went to his fate. He was rejected. His appointment had been unwillingly made by D.rector-General Davis, under great pressure brought through the efforts of Commissioner de Young of California, who had abandoned his original choice, Gen. N. P. Chipman, at the instance of Commissioner Forsythe, also of California.

Immediately following the rejection of Maxwell, and at the same meeting, the Director-General nominated Gen. Chipman for the place. He was unanimously "knocked out" by the directory, and a great injustice was thereby done the inside," to withdraw and save him-mously "knocked out" by the directory, and a great injustice was thereby done him, for he had not been an applicant for the place, but on the contrary had written a letter (published in THE TIMES in the latter part of May) expressly stating that he was not in the race, and advising a concentration upon J. de Barth Shorb of San Gabriel, but coning his conf. (Chipman's) (riands not only of his own (Chipman's) friends, but those of Maxwell also. Under the circumstances the act of Director-Gen-eral Dayis in appointing Gen. Cnip-man was a mistake, and resulted in an injustice to Chipman, who was rejected through the disagreement between the directory and the local board, both of whom have the confirming power, and net because any charges worthy of serious notice were brought against the Tehama man. The only complaint, indeed, that was made against him indeed, that was made against him was by certain Southerners of better memories and narrow instincts, who claimed that Chipman should be barred because he had twenty-five years ago, done his duty as a member of the military court that tried Mrs. Surratt and the other conspirators against the life of Abraham Lincoln, the could be an imputation upon the It would be an imputation upon the common sense and common fairness of the average representative men of the South to believe that they share in this narrow and bigoted view of the duty of a national officer in a national emer-

of a national officer in a national emer-gency. So muce for the Surratt charge-againt Chipman. His rejection was through other influences.

Following this second failure to se-cure a head for the horticultural de-partment came the sudden nomination of Commissioner Forsythe, who was of Commissioner Forsythe, who was at once confirmed by the directory, be-foreibis case and character had been investigated. The announcement of his selection brought a storm of protests from all quarters, and charges more serious, even, than those made against Maxwell were "fired in" upon the Director-General, the directory and the local board like volleys of mustury. It furnishes in itself an epitome of American pluck, perseverence and enterprise—an idex to the virgin resources of the Great West.

A few weeks ago there met in Chicago a most interesting gathering. It was a reception to Chicago's founders that there is a wide difference between discharging sewer gas and carbonic and women still vigorous and in the aid gas into the air. Nature has product and women still vigorous and in the full possession of their faculties, who had seem the first stages driven in this, acquiesce in his selection as not the best thing that could be done, but he best that could be done under the circumstances. But that was before the true character of Mr. Forsythe had been laid bare to the public gaze. The charges against him, even if only par-tially true, disqualify him for the im-portant trust in question. The story of his alien character has been ventilated. It is not a crime to be an alien, but it is dishonorable to qui ble about the fact, and a telltale weakness to atthe fact, and a telltale weakness to at-tempt to remove this disqualification by an eleventh-hour naturalization, es-pecially after having alternately posed as a citizen and fluctuated under the fire of newspaper interviews, when the direct ques-tion was put: "Are you a citizen of the United States." So Forsythe, like Mahomet's burial casket, is sus-pended between heaven and trea pended between heaven and terra firma. He requires another confirma-tion, which he will never get, accordtion, which he will never get, according to appearances this week. A. T. Hatch's charge, that the Fresno aspirant once kept an assignation house at the Geysers, has been hotly denied, but not satisfactorily cleared up. The other serious charge is that he is too cunning with the pasteboards. This does not appear to have even been denied. In fact, the story is told with great explicitness, coupled with the assertion that Mr. Forsythe acquired his valuable raisin vineyard in Fresuo by gambling. The circumstances of the "acquisition"

The circumstances of the "acquisition" have been related to the authorities here with such minutic as compel one who has read the record to believe that Mr. Forsythe is not asaint. The story, Mr. Forsythe is not as aint. The story, in brief, is that while keeping the hotel at the Geysers he "went through" young Woodworth, then of Freeno, winning from him, at cards, all his ready cash, the stakes running up into the thousands, and Forsythe, being invariably successful, finally, when cash and bank checks were no longer available, the deluded young gambler, Woodworth, staked his ranch, which his father had left him, lying in the heart of the flaest raisin district in the world. The young fellow put the mort-day after the arrival of Mr. Shorb. He came ostensibly to meet the charges against him, but, I learn, says that he contemplates a visit to Europe, whatever may be the result of the pending investigation into his case, He brought his wife with him and sent her on to New York, so it has been learned. That the tide has set strongly 'against him within the last ten days cannot be denied. An unfavorable report in his case by the special investigating committee, is known to be in existence, and I do not think he can pull through. His case has been postponed for the time being, pending further inquiries.

Meantime Mr. Shorb, being on the ground, is becoming better known, and is realting except invession.

meantime Mr. Shorb, being on the ground, is becoming better known, and is making a good impression wherever he appears. He has made many strong iriends in World's Fair circles already, and I regard his chances as more than even against all comers. The main element of doubt in the case The main element of doubt in the case is t-e prevailing disposition on the part of the Director-General and some members of the directory and local board to refuse California further chances in the game, in the event of Forsythe's rejection, which now seems certain. They argue that "there ought to be an end of this thing sometime." And yet they make no conclusive or satisfactory answer to the obvious re-sponse on behalf of California that even two or three mistakes should not cut the State off, or forfeit her just claim to this important appointment. It is not California, but certain indi-It is not California, but certain individuals, who have made the trouble thus far. "Give California another chance" is the appeal we still continue to make to the powers in control of the big show. There has been and is a kindly attitude toward our State, on the part of the World's Fair people, because of the handsome and prompt action of the Legislature in making a $600,000 appropriation for California's exhibit, and Gov. Markham's approval of the bill. The Empire State of the Pacific is held in high regard here for this and other good reasons, and there is still a cordial willingness on the part of the more considerate and logical to give California one more chance to capture the horticultural plum.

The day has been almost perfect—a typical summer day, fair enough for even California. All Chicago has been celebrating in its multiform and multifarious ways, devoting itself princi-pally to baseball and patriotism—in the order named. II. G. O,

A TULARE TREE.

And How It will Show up at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, July 4.- Newspaper adrices from California say that the people of Tulare are going to exhibit here one of the results of the California climate in an altogether original way. There is a tree in that county which is a fair specimen of what the redwood can be if it grows enough. It stands in a gorge deep enough to be impressive, and its topmost bough, where the cones are thickest, is on a level with the highest rocks on the sides of the ravine. The tree is 390 feet high, 96 feet from the butt to the first branch, and 26 feet in diameter at the base. A log of clean, smooth wood that will measure ninety feet in length and average twenty feet in diameter can easily be cut out of it.

That is what the Tulare people propose to do, and having the log they pose to do, and having the log, they will utilize it to the benefit of the World's Fair and the glory of Tulare. The tree grows well up toward the headwaters of the Kaweah River, and the great log will have to be carried, or moved in some way, to the railroad at Visalia, a distance of nearly sixty miles. It is a stupendous undertaking, but in all likelihood the trunk will be cut in sections lengthwise and then the passed from the time the men with axes started to fell it and then the most important work will commence. The log will be made whole by the putting together of the sections. Expert woodsmen will cut it across in the middle, making two lengths each forty-five feet long. Each of these lengths will then be hewn into the shape of ordinary railway passenger coaches. ordinary railway passenger coaches The rough bark of the tree will be the roof of the car, and on the sides ends the natural wood will be left un-polished. The insides will be hollowed out, windows and doors put in, and the interior finished after the fashion the interior finished after the fashion of Pullman cars; one will be a buffet dining-car, with apartments for bath, barber-shop and ktchen. The other will be a sieeper with an observation room. Platforms will put be at the end and ordinary trucks underneath, and to prevent the transformed tree from falling to pieces, heavy bands of iron will be put around the body of the car, Cant. Thomas H. Thomson, the Calwill be put around the body of the car, Capt. Thomas H. Thompson, the California World's Fair Commissioner, is now considering the plans. The tree would have been left with the bark all on, but for the fact that the cars could not be more than the regulation size and get over bridges and through tunnels safely. They will be about eleven feet wide and ten feet high. It is intended that the men of Tulare shall take their wives and children and come to the Columbia Exposition with their tree. The cars will be kept on the fair grounds, and the delegation will make them their home. The portions of the tree not used in making the coaches will be cut up and soid as mementoes.

"Staff" is the St off. Beecial Correspondence Globe-Democrat. CHICAGO, July 1.—It was a fortunate day for Chicago when somebody discovered that a World's fair could he built of "ataff" instead of "Joliet marble." This substitution means the the thousands, and Forsythe, being invariably successful, sinally, when cash and bank checks were no longer available, the deluded young gambler. Woodworth, staked his ranch, which his father had left him, lying in the heart of the finest raisin district in the world. The young fellow put the mortgage into the pot and lost. Then, in desperation, he went back to his brother Ben at Freeno, who owned a valuable raisin ranch lying alongside the other's, and told him of his plight. Ben, so the story goes, agreed to place a mortgage upon his own property and raise money to help his brother out. This he did, and with the money so raised the gambling brother went to Forsythe and tendered him part of the amount on condition that he would let to on the balance. Forsythe consented, but before Woodworth left the Geysers he had played another game with Forsythe, and losts o heavily that he again jeopardized his ranch and his

all. He then proposed to make Forsythe a deed of his property on condition that he release the mortgage on brother Ben's ranch. Forsythe consented, and thus became possessed of a most valuable property for little or nothing. He shortly afterward left the Geysers and removed to Fresno, where he now resides. Young Woodworth left the place a ruined man. I tell the story as it has been told here.

Mr. Forsythe arrived here from California early this week, following one day after the arrival of Mr. Shorb. He came ostensibly to meet the charges spond with the molds in which they are cast. The color of the staff is a dirty white, but any color can be put on by a wash. The inclination of the bureau of construction is toward buff. In France this staff is called a permanent building material. It is said to shedrain as readily as weather-boarding does. But the storms from Lake Michigan have never yet had a fair chance at staff. Perhaps the new material will be all right. If it is the World's Fair stockholders will congratulate themselves. Staff costs only a tenth as much as stone.

. To Mov the Masses.

There are some big problems to be settled before the gates open of the World's Columbian Exposition. One World's Columbian Exposition. One of the biggest is how to get the people down to Jackson Park and back every day. According to the calculations of Chicago 10,000,000 of people are coming to the fair. The lowest estimate is that 300,000 will have to be taken down and brought back every day. The distance is from five to seven miles, according to the route. A double track of the Illinois Central runs along the lake shore to and through the park. of the Illinois Central runs along the lake shore to and through the park. The Cottage Grove branch of the cable road now reaches a corner of the park. This is all of the present rail communication. It barely suffices for the ordinary crowd of Chicagoans who go down every pleasant Sunday to see how much dirt has been moved. A young man named Javcox has been appointed chief of transportation for the fair at a salary of $5000. Old railroad men are predicting that Jaycox will be in the insane asylum before he works out his problem. When Jackwill be in the insane asylum before he works out his problem. When Jackson l'ark was chosen, it was said several other railroads would build to it and help carry the people. A little inquiry showed that the other roads wouldn't do anything of the kind. They foresaw that they were going to have all that they could do in getting the people to Chicago and back to their the people to Chicago and back to their homes. Connection with the park was out of the question unless expensive spurs and depots were constructed. This decision of the other roads dumped the burden upon the Illinois Central, which said "we will do the best we can," but wouldn't promise much more than possibly the doubling of tracks.

Baffled in these directions Jayoox went to an old religious many and set him to Baffled in these directions Jaycox went to an old railroad man and got him to draft a plan for carrying the people between the park and the heart of the city. The old railroad man studied it out and reported that rail transportation facilities for such a daily crowd as is expected, would cost $6,000,000. That, of course, was beyond consideration.
Jaycox and the department of transportation are still puzzling about the movement of the people. The only suggested solution which looks at all feasible, is to put on a hundred steam-boats to ply between the World's Fair pier at Jackson Park and landing places on the lake front and on the river. That will be rather slow, but it seems to be the best that can be done. On big days people will have to wait or walk.

By Telegraph to The Times. ASPEN (Colo.,) July 12.—[By the Associated Press.] A borrible railroad accident occurred at Aspen June tion on the Midland road last night. A special train was backing from a water tank to switch to the Aspen track when the rear end of a passen and steam poured into the broken end of the passenger car, horribly scalding thirteen passengers—five men, seven women and one child. All that waspossible was done to relieve the sufferings of the unfortunates, but Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rogers of Woodry, Colo.; Miss Annie Phelan of Gardiff, Colo.; Mrs. W. I. Willoby of Glenwood, Colo.; Frank Ellis of Aspen, Colo., and a baby have already died, and others are in a critical condition.

The disaster was probably due to an error of judgment on the part of the "hostler" in bringing the engine out from the roundhouse, He thought to clear the main track before the passenger train reached him, and was pushing the engine at a high rate of speed. Just at the coal-chutes he struck the rear truck of the passenger coach, tearing a hole in it and ripping the valve from the engine. Torrents of scalding steam and water poured in upon the victims, and of twenty-five passengers in the coach three colored men in the forward apartment were the only ones who escaped without injury.

HER GIFT IS PATIENCE.

BELLA, THE WOMAN IN CHARGE OF A LADIES' WAITING ROOM.

Her Post Is in the Grand Central Sta tion, and She Sees Hundreds of Busy Frantic, Bushing Women Every Day Despite All the Haste She Is Calm.

The presiding genius of the ladies waiting room at the New York Central station at Forty-second street is named Bella. It is to be presumed she has also a family name, but no one knows what it is. In fact no one cares. For thirtee years she has been the friend and assist ant of almost every child and woman living between New York and Pough keepsie who travels on the railroad. She is a tall, slight woman, with a pleasant manner and kindly face, though can remain so placid, answering so calm-ly the thousand and one questions ad-dressed her in rapid succession, is a puz-

In the first place, most of the out of town shoppers have all their purchases sent to the waiting room, to be called for at train time. These bundles are put away in a big closet, piled from floor to ceiling with packages containing every conceivable thing, from spring bonnets to cream puffs. From 3 to 5 is the time to watch reunions between the women and their belongings. Shopping is over and every one is hurrying home. Half a dozen tired women and girls will charge into the waiting room at once, hastily inquire, "Where are my things, Bella?" and begin to arrange their bangs By the time the hasty toilet is finished their dust coats and parcels are on the big table, and the umbrella and overes are on a chair in the corner.

Every parcel has had the knots seen to, lest they fall open in the train, and soft or carelessly wrapped articles have an additional heavy paper about them. These are all handed over with a pleas ant smile and just the slightest possible forward motion of one hand for the ten cent fee, which is dropped into a capacious bag in the closet.

SOME PECULIAR CHARGES. Ladies coming in for a day's shopping usually stop in a moment to get rid of heavy veils and dust coats or to wipe the cinders from their faces. Lots of the cinders from their faces. Lots of them keep their own combs and towels here, and repair damages as calmly as if at home. Bella gives them a little critical glance, and perhaps makes a suggestion. Then off they go, leaving, things scattered about—soap, comb and train gloves—all of which will be found in their own particular corners wanted.

There is one lady from Yonkers who is deaf and afflicted with an unquie spirit. She would not trust her comb out of her sight for worlds; her soap she dries and puts back in her pocket. I saw her the other afternoon run back four times to see if a parcel left in Bella's care had been safely marked and hidden. Another kind of crank never knows when the train goes, neither will believe when Bella tells her, but always insiste on that long suffering woman hunting up a time table and proving her state-

In striking contrast is the good na tured, easy going woman, who saunter in, asks "When does the next train go Bella?" and calmly reads a novel till the bell rings. This is the woman who leaves her small girl here while she pays calls. The small girls enjoys being left, and tells wonderful stories of her adventures all the way home.

I sat for an hour in the room one day and saw a canary and two children left or called for, a school girl thankfully recover a lost exercise book, four men plunge in under the impression that it was the entrance to the elevated railroad. Cyrus Field hammer flercely on the door and inquire if the feminine por-tion of his family had gone on, a marvelous number of hairpins replaced and an almost endless stream of bundles handed in by errand boys.

"HER LADIES." A nice old lady with curls gravely consulted everybody in the room about the weather and finally decided not to visit some country friends till the next day, as it looked like rain, and went not to have the bother of carrying it back again. After her came a couple of girls who had evidently never been there before, for one set the other to keep a sharp eye on her bundles while she ma a voyage to the ticket office, and then performed a like kindly office while her friend visited the news stand. Then they had their shawl straps tightened and kept Bella busy for quite five min-utes attending to their wants, and departed without thinking it necessary to fee the patient attendant. As she re-marked pathetically, "All that travels

Bearing this latter fact in mind, Bella stands guard over half the basins and toilet arrangements generally, reserving them for "her ladies," as she calls the regular travelers. The ordinary public eople she does not include in her -may not venture to remove the stains of travel in these holy bowls, nor arrange their bangs at that special glass

A complaint was made not very long ago by some one not of the elect exclusiveness, but Bella appeared before the authorities and defended her cause so well that she won triumphantly, and this day the regular travelers their own little privileges that are cheap at the cost of a daily dime and pleasant greeting.—New York Recorder.

One of Colonel Ingersoll's Stories They tell a story of Mrs. Jones, of Chicago, who visited Rome and while there was shown some of the great marble masterpieces of the world, among others the Apollo Belvidere. They pointed it out to her as being the most perfect form of man that had ever been conceived by the brain of an artist, and the old woman walked all around it, looked at it from every point of view, and she says:

The Bridegroom One of an Unlucky 13 A Pole, whose name is recorded on the police docket of the Seventeenth ward station as John Bunco, was arrested late Saturday night. Saturday morning he was married to a young woman of his own nationality at his home in the rear of Butler street, between Fifty-first and Fifty-second streets. The usual celebra-tion incident to the Polish marriage ceremony was continued through the day.

A large number of guests were present. Several fights were indulged in and late Saturday night the commotion was so great that Captain Brophy, Lieu-tenant Andrew Orth and several officers raided the house.

Thirteen men were caught, including the groom. The bride was the only woman about the premises, and was not arrested. Each of the men was sent to the workhouse for thirty days .- Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Big Otter Drowned in a Trap. An abnormally large dog otter was caught at the end of last week in the river Cherwell, close to the bathing place known as Loggerhead, near the University park, in a rabbit trap. It appears that Mr. Charles Cox, the pro-prietor of the bathing place, in the early part of the week set the trap close to the river side for the purpose of catching a rat, and on looking for it the next morning it was nowhere to be seen.

After the lapse of three days the chair of the trap was seen in the water, and on a hitcher being obtained an otter, caught by one of the forefeet at the joint was brought to the surface. thus weighted had been unable to rise from the bottom to obtain air, and so was drowned. It weighed 34 pounds and messured 3 feet 9 inches from the nose to the tip of the tail.—Land and

Moltke Kept Waiting.

The German papers teem with anecdotes of Moltke. It is a sign of Moltke's ess of life" to the very end that only a few weeks before his death he be came a member of the Verein der Ber liner Kunstler. He attended one of the "great sessions," which was announced in the cards of invitation to begin at 8 p. m. The artists, as a rule, are not fa-natical in the matter of punctuality. Moltke arrived at 8 precisely. At 8:80 a few artists straggled in. There in the few artists straggled in. The names of women figure considerably in the lists of successful hunters and fishers. Mrs. Charles Allen Glasgow, caught seven tarpon at Char-lotte Harbor, Fla., last season, one of which weighed 122 pounds. Mrs. Napier, of New York, and Mrs. Stagg, are other successful fisherwomen of this somewhat ponderous catch, and all three will en-ter into competition again next season for the prize of the best catch.

We have had a very pleasant week of German operatic burlesque, enlivened by the clever little midgets who, as "Lilliputians," posed, sang, danced and laughed themselves into the hearts of all the spectators. For clean-cut comicality the little, droll Franz Ebert bore away the palm, while for genuine artistic talent, grace and versatility, the diminutive but well-developed Selma Goerner, in her variety of male costumes, was simply unapproachable. The abilities of the little people had a fairer scope in The Burgomaster of Pin-neberg, the piece given on Saturday, than they had in The Pupil in Magic, which was largely spectacular. The little folks have been performing together, it is said, for the past nine years, and though they have been only eight months in this country they have be-come so much attached to it that they come so much attached to it that they want to stay here permanently. Their wishes will not be gratified, however, as among their future engagements is included a three-year's tour in Russia. Their appearances in St. Louis and Chicago, great German speaking centers, were immensely successful, and their manager states that he is already $60,000 ahead since landing at New York. No wonder they like this country.

For the present week the only theatrical attraction is The Limited Mail opening at the Grand Operahouse on Thursday evening next. The plece is written by Eimer E. Vance, and is described as a realistic comedy drama.
It will deserve its title of "realistic" if the promises of the advance agent are to be relied upon, and of course he is not expected to deal in anything else than cold facts and figures. He says:
Among the many novelties—innovations—in stagecraft is a full train of cars, consisting of locomotive, tender, baggage, mail and vestibuled Pallman coaches, 200 feet in length, and ten feet eight inches in height, which crosses the stage in six seconds, with all the real accompaniment, the clangling of the bell, the shrill scream of the steam whistle, and the sigh from the air-brake, all are said to be perfect.
Another feature is a realistic wreck scene, when a car is wrecked while in rapid motion, while still another exciting scene is a real saw mill in operation, sawing out ties and bridge material, the heroine being bound to a ation, sawing out ties and bridge ma-terial, the heroine being bound to a log, but is rescued just in time to be saved from being scalped by the wicked-looking buzz.

The greatest novelty of all, however, is seen in the third act where the villain endeavors to cut the telegraph wires in order to prevent any thwart wires in order to prevent any thwarting of his atrocious scheme to wreck
"the Limited Mail," and a boy frustrates the plan by climbing a telegraph pole, tapping the wire, and sending the warning message, "For your life, hold the Limited Mail," which is flashed out from the wire in zigzag leters of fire in such a manner that the entire audience can plainly read the words.

Two entire carloads of scenic and mechanical effects are carried by the company, and the management faithfully promises that every particle of it will be used here, everything, in fact, exactly the same as during their six-teen week's run in New York.

Certain dramatic critics in San Francisco are threatened with "a bad quarter of an hour," as our French friends put it. Music and Drama in friends put it. Music and Drama in its current issue comes out it a double-leaded editorial and scores and scarifies, in that trenchant style so peculiarly its own, the course pursued for several months past by the "decayed Call and debilitated Examiner" in their treatment of visiting attractions. Toering managers, it is said, have become alarmed. The critics in question are charged with falsifying and distorting, with impurity of motive and mendacity, and other grave offenses of the same kind. "It is now full time to demand kind. "It is now full time to demand a halt to ribaid rot and pure cussed-ness," says Music and Drama, and then goes on to intimate in direct terms, under inspiration from the ag-grieved parties, that the offending newspapers will be punished by a deprivation of theatrical advertising patronage, which will bring them "to It is a very pretty quarrel as it

The is said that the Five As will shortly put to a vote whether the American actors may with dignity appear at private houses in "entertainments" for pay. The American Republic has made men of its citizens, and the American actor should lift his guid out of the flunky sim of the old world, where they are invited as guests and treated as servants.—[Dunlop's Stage News.

Such talk is the merest buncombe. A professional entertainer, who plays, recites or sings at a private house for pay, may preserve his dignity if he allows his audience to be aware that he is only present in his professional capacity. But, if he attempts, while demanding and accepting pay for his efforts, to palm himself off as an invited guest who is assisting in the evening's entertainment from motives of mere good nature, he is acting under false pretenses and deserves humiliation.

The practice of employing professionals at private reunions is don't make more shiter or awing from the part of the host to give his company something worth listening to, and it also opens an avenue of employment to many deserving people to whom the honorarium thus earned is a welcome addition to an uncertain income. There is no valid reason why a professional who appears on the stage for money should not also accept pay for similar work done in a drawing room, and at the same time preserve his self respect uninjured.

plowed. The coops were then placed in line on one side and close to each other as conwenient, with space left wide enough to pass between them. Every particle of grain of hard food, crushed bone, charcoal, sulphur, pulverized crockery, etc., was raked or dug into the ground so that the hens were obliged to scratch continually for their living. The soft food or water was placed in troughs or disbes along the outside of the yard which the hens could reach by putting their heads through between the laths. In this way the water and soft food were always clean. When the ground of the yard and house became at all tainted, or had been sufficiently fertilized—say once a week or oftener—the coops were moved forward their length on to new fresh ground. The extradroppings under the roosting bar were scattered over the space that was not fertilized between the coops. The old, fertilized ground was cultivated and irrigated and immediately planted to cabbage, onion sets, lettuce, radishes, corn, beans, potatoes, millet or some quick-growing crop that will mature about the same time, either to be sold to buy hen food, or to be fed to them if suitable.

With poultry, as with everything else on the farm, there is always an opportunity to sell at good prices fowls or eggs that are of little better quality than others are offering.

While Gov. Murray and Contractor Graham were walking down Fourth street today noon, a sleek-looking Celestial stepped up to Mr. Graham and inquired or him if he could contract with him to furnish [00 laborers on the new railroad. "Why, yes," said Mr. Graham, "I will take 100 Chinamen—fity now and the balance later on." Everything seemed favorable to the contract, when Gov. "Oh, we fly back, all lightee," was the stem-winding rejoinder, and the Governor concluded to let them fly.

HOME HAPPENINGS. A Night Raid on Celestial

MR. PAINTER'S MOTOR CAR

Floods and Earthquake in California Personal Mention and Brevities.

Constable S'ater, Marshal McLean and Officer Robins raided a Chinese gambling establishment, Saturday evening, shortly after 9 o'clock.

The first house south of California street on the west side of Fair Oaks avenue, was the scene of operations. For some time past the place has received some attention from the guard ians of the peace. The inmates frequently grew noisy-so much so that s respectable Chinaman made a forma complaint against the place.

The front room of the building is occupied as a laundry. When the officers approached, the front door was open and some half a dozen Chinamen were at work. Marshal McLean and Constable Slater made their appear ance at this entrance, while Officer Robins stationed himself in the rear to prevent anybody getting away. The laundrymen set up a series of yells to warn their companions, but it was too late, for the officers had reached a room in the rear where a gambling game was in full swing. There were eleven celestials taking a hand, but in some way two managed to escape. The remaining nine were captured and marched to police headquarters, where six of them deposited $10 bail apiece. The other three spent Sunday in jail. The case will likely come up for a hearing today. An extensive gambling outfit and some money which was found on the table were also taken in hand. ance at this entrance, while Officer

The difficulty so far in applying it to street cars has been to regulate the speed according to the load carried, and this is the obstacle which Mr. Painter has attempted the load carried, and this is the obsta-cle which Mr. Painter has attempted to surmount and with considerable

Assigned Sale

Assign regular run on the city street-car line. The gas is generated in two tanks by passing a current of air over gasoline. The gas is exploded in two cylinders by an electric spark supplied from a battery. The power is directed to turning a main driving-shaft running lengthwise through the car. A series of speed pulleys are connected with the shaft, carrying similar pulleys, by means of loose belts. A secondary shaft is in turn geared to both axles by means of pinions and bevel gears. The desired speed is obtained by applying a tightener to one of the belts on the series of speed pulleys, thus varying the speed at will from two to nine miles an hour. There is a small tank of water carried for keeping the cylinders cool. The carhas pulled a load of seven and a haif tons up a grade of 240 feet to the mile. It is estimated that a gallon of gasoline is consumed per hour, while the machinery is in full operation.

The car has proved itself capable of starting heavy loads, rounding sharp curyes and of doing many other thing.

starting heavy loads, rounding sharp curves and of doing many other things which nothing but a well-regulated PASADENA, CAL. which nothing but a well-regulated piece of machinery would attempt. In a ride to the terminus of the road at the diving purk a high rate of speed was attained and all the steep grades were surmounted with ease. At present the machine makes considerable noise, but this Mr. Painter says he can rectify, and ere long it may be expected that he will turn out an engine whose good qualities in the way of speed, power and economy will relegate mules and horses from the street-oar service, where they have worked so long and faithfully. In the light of naphtha even Outario's muchtalked-about gravity car will have to take a back seat.

This, as its title indicates, is a story of the heart, but with its sweet remance is woven a wealth of incident and adventure which will at once enlist the attention of the most indiffer. list the attention of the most indiffer-ent reader. Adrift on the wide, wide sea, with the silent heavens above, and the blackness of the night around, sea, with the silent heavens above, and the blackness of the night around, and the great world of waters below is one of the pictures given, and it is one which makes us sadder with its very desolateness and danger. But the brighter pictures charm and the story has a beautiful ending.

The North American Review for the current month presents an unusually varied table of contents. Exclusive of the notes and comments there are thirteen articles, which may be classified as follows: Theological, philanthropic, literary, historical, educational, economic, industrial, agricultural and domestic. The dominant questions of the hour are discussed, as usual with fullness and importability tural and domestic. The dominant questions of the hour are discussed, as usual, with fullness and impartiality by the highest living authorities. All of our readers will be sure to turn with more than ordinary interest to the article by Baron de Hirsch, the famous Hebrew philanthropiat, describing his plans for the alleviation of the condition of his outlawed kinsman. "The wealth of this remarkable man," says The Jewish Messenger, "was acquired through the genius for finance illustrated in his organization of railways from Central Europe to the farthest east. His marriage with Miss Bischoffsheim not only strengthened his position, but gave him a life partner who has actively entered into her husband's philanthropic plans, which have made the name of Hirsch synonymous with the broadest and most intelligent benevolence. Other articles that may be noted are "The Inheritance of Property," by Prof. Richard T. Ely of the Johns Hopkins University; "Industrial and Financial Coöperation," by F. B. Thurber, head of the house of Thurber, Whyland & Co.; and "The Theological Crisis," by Prof. Briggs, who placed his contribution in the hands of the editor two days before he started for Europe. It is an elegantly illustrated magazine, and among its delightful articles are "The State of Maine," by Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr., which is profusely illustrated; "Master Shakespear's Star," a story by Elizabeth B. Walling; "Schliemann's Discoveries in Hellas," by Prof. F. L. Ewell; "On Framing and Hanging Pictures," Samuel L. Gerry, together with a full table of contents, all of which is of stirring interest. (New England Magazine Corporation, No. 86 Federal street, Boston.)

Outing for July is charmingly attractive, holding as it does the breath of the outdoor world with its pleasures and its sports. Ernest Ingersoll contributes the finely illustrated article, "Beyond the Metropolis of the Mountains," while Chase Mellen give us "Rowing as a Recreation for Women." F. Campbell Mailer, M. D., contributes which is supplemented by charming illustrations. The table of contents is full and is attractive in its variety and scope. (New York: The Outing Company.)

The beach, which is after all the great attraction, was lined by those who were delighted to get away from the city and enjoy a brief vacation at the seaside, and the bath houses, were crowded all day by an eager multitude, who good-humoredly jostled each other in their haste to get proper habiliments to take an ocean bath.

The newly-elected officers of Santa Monica Court, LO.F., were installed Saturday evening, on which occasion there was a large delegation of visiting brethren. At the close of the services the party partook of a collation and en-joyed themselves in a social way.

THE LAW AT FAULT.

THE LAXITY OF CALIFORNIA'S DIVORCE LAW.

The Reasons for This State of Affairs-Proceedings Not Allowed to Be Made Public-Cases In Point.

The ease with which divorces can be obtained in Chicago has for some time past furnished the eastern comic papers with a standing joke, upon which they fall back with unfailing regularity on every possible occasion. It has apparently escaped the observation of the wits heretofore, that a similar state of affairs exists in this State, particularly in San Francisco and this city.

Cases occur aimost daily in the local courts, where a wife, or husband, appears with an attorney, produces an affidavit of the publication of the summons in some obscure weekly paper, which the defendant is all probability has had no chance of seeing; shows that the defendant is in default; swears to her, or his, side of the story briefly; is corroborated by one or two witnesses; and in less than fifteen minutes is granted a decree of divorce as prayed for.

One of the main reasons for this condition of things is undoubtedly that the law specially provides that divorce proceedings shall not be made public, and as a matter of consequence the public, and as a matter of consequence the public is kept in the dark as regards the methods usually adopted in these cases. In the first piace, this law provides that no person, except the parties to the suit and their autorneys, shall be allowed to see the pleadings in a divorce suit. Then again it provides that the testimony shall not be published, and practically it denies to the public their constitutional right to know what transpires.

It is contended that the Legislature, in framing this statute, had in view the effect produced upon the morals of the public, should it be allowed to hear the sensational details frequently testified to in divorce cases, and was actuated by the desire to protect the public morals in denying it the right to see the pleadings and hear the testimony in such cases. Yet, on the other hand, it is argued that the public, which pays the excenses of the courts, outh to be informed as to the manner in which its funds are expended. Under the present condition of affairs no person, except the parties to a suit, their attorneys and the County Clerk's deputies, know when a complaint in a divorce suit is filed; and all further proceedings to be thrown open to the public they would be less frequent than is at present the case, as there are several instances on record where the parties mand their difficulties before the relativity of their market being woman to prevent her testifying against him, and when the charge was dismissed, instituted divorce proceedings on the ground of adultary. The matter was kept quiet, and the first that was known about the matter was the announcement of the

Steady Progress

Has characterized Hood's Sarsaparilla ever sine it was placed before the public. Wherever in troduced, its sales have grown from year to year antil now it is the most popular and most successful medicine offered. Any druggist will confirm this statement. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine of merit. It does actually accomplish all that is claimed for it, and when given a fair trial, is reasonably certain to be of benefit.

Positive Statements.
